The EU Member States and European Institutions have continued their joint efforts to further improve mechanisms, means and coordination to combat terrorism in the European Union, to protect citizens and safeguard the society and the values by implementing the European Union Counter-Terrorism Strategy in its four main pillars: prevent, protect, pursue and respond, and they have increased international cooperation on these issues.

ASEM partners have committed themselves to prevent and combat terrorism, and some have had extensive experience in dealing with the common threat. Other partners have suffered from continued attacks.
